Approved For Release 20 100 R6 : SEIGR 10975A06800440001-8

25X1

21 February 1963

Copy No. Est

25X

CENTRAL

INTELLIGENCE

BULLETIN

State Dept. review completed

GROUP 1
Excluded from automatic downgrading and declassification

Approved For Release 2009/25/16: CARPPD 100975A006800440001-

25)

21 February 1963

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE BULLETIN

CONTENTS

- 1. Mexico-Venezuela: Communist-inspired demonstrations may greet Betancourt when he visits Mexico 23 and 24 February. (Page 1)
- 2. Cuba: Castro will address some party cadres on 22 February. (Page 2)

- 4. Congo: Adoula under criticism from some of his closest supporters. (Page 4)
- 5. Bulgaria: Regime ponders how to cope with its African student problem. (Page 5)
- 6. Yugoslavia West Germany: Yugoslavia decides to adopt hostile policy toward West Germany. (Page 6)

9. Notes: Cuba; Communist China; Yemen-UK; Europe - Japan - US Imports; Togo; South Korea. (Page 9)

25X

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE BULLETIN

21 February 1963

DAILY BRIEF

Mexico-Venezuela: Leaders of the Mexican Communist Party and of Communist-dominated front groups are planning hostile demonstrations when Venezuelan President Betancourt visits Mexico on 23 and 24 February, Pro-Communist former President Cardenas reportedly has endorsed the plan in principle. He regards it as a means of impressing the government with the groups' combined ability to incite mass activity, but he is pretending ignorance and intends to be away from Mexico City during the demonstrations.
Mexican security forces, concerned over the possibility of disturbances during the Betancourt visit,
are probably capable of preventing any acts of violence from getting out of hand.
venting any acts of violence from getting out of nand.	-

25X1

25X1

1

Cuba: Fidel Castro, in a speech scheduled for 22 February, is likely to set the stage for new steps in the formal organization of the Cuban political party machine, which has been promised for this year.

Castro is to address party cadres from Cuba's three western provinces. This will be his first known speech to a strictly party audience since last spring when veteran Communist Anibal Escalante and his followers were purged from offices in the provisional party organ, the Integrated Revolutionary Organizations.

The development of the party, which is to be known as the United Party of the Socialist Revolution (PURS), was interrupted during the crisis last fall. Since the easing of the crisis, meetings have resumed at work centers throughout the country. At these meetings, "outstanding workers" have been "elected" to PURS cells. Che Guevara has predicted that the party's initial membership will be between 50,000 and 60,000.

The membership of the top organizations of the new party will probably reveal recent changes in the relative standing of high Cuban leaders. Fidel Castro will use the new party organization to strengthen his personal position further.

25X

Congo: (Premier Adoula is under increasing criticism from some of his closest supporters.

Despite Adoula's success in ending Katanga's secèssion, Congo Army chief Mobutu, Sureté chief Nendaka, Foreign Minister Bomboko, and National Bank Governor Ndele have separately criticized him as weak and indecisive. They express doubt that Adoula will be able to control Parliament when it reconvenes in March. They fear that Parliament will insist on taking up various domestic issues, instead of confining discussion to the new draft constitution, and might overthrow Adoula.

These critics have not yet given any sign that they have considered possible alternatives to Adoula's leadership.

25X1

25X1

21 Feb 63

DAILY BRIEF

Approved For Release 2003/05/16: CIA-RDP79T00975A006800440001-8

Bulgaria: The Bulgarian regime apparently is still considering how to cope with its African student problem.

Following the demonstrations on 12 February in Sofia, 34 of the approximately 350 African students representing 23 countries had left by 17 February, and another 21 had definite plans to leave by 20 February. In addition, 58 students continued to plead with nonbloc diplomats for aid in leaving Bulgaria. The US Legation in Sofia estimates that with foreign assistance as many as 100 would leave.

Bulgarian authorities have freely granted exit permits to all but north African students but have made only a few minor gestures to all those remaining. Officials and professors told the student body that a police official involved in the repression of the 12 February demonstration had been arrested, one student claimed that the Bulgarians had offered to raise stipends by 50 percent, and others reported that authorities had offered "concessions" in housing.

The regime, however, has not lifted its ban on the All-African Student Union, has sent eviction notices to some students, has physically maltreated 25X1 those arrested on 12 February, and has tried to force others to make public statements belittling the incident.

21 Feb 63

DAILY BRIEF

5

Yugoslavia - West Germany: (Yugoslavia has decided to adopt a hostile policy toward West Germany, beginning next month.)

A Yugoslav Foreign Ministry official indicated to Ambassador Kennan that Belgrade has lost patience with Bonn's refusal to attempt seriously to resolve pressing bilateral problems. Ambassador Kennan considers that Belgrade's decision is probably a byproduct of Belgrade's rapprochement with the Soviet bloc, and may result in even closer ties with the bloc.

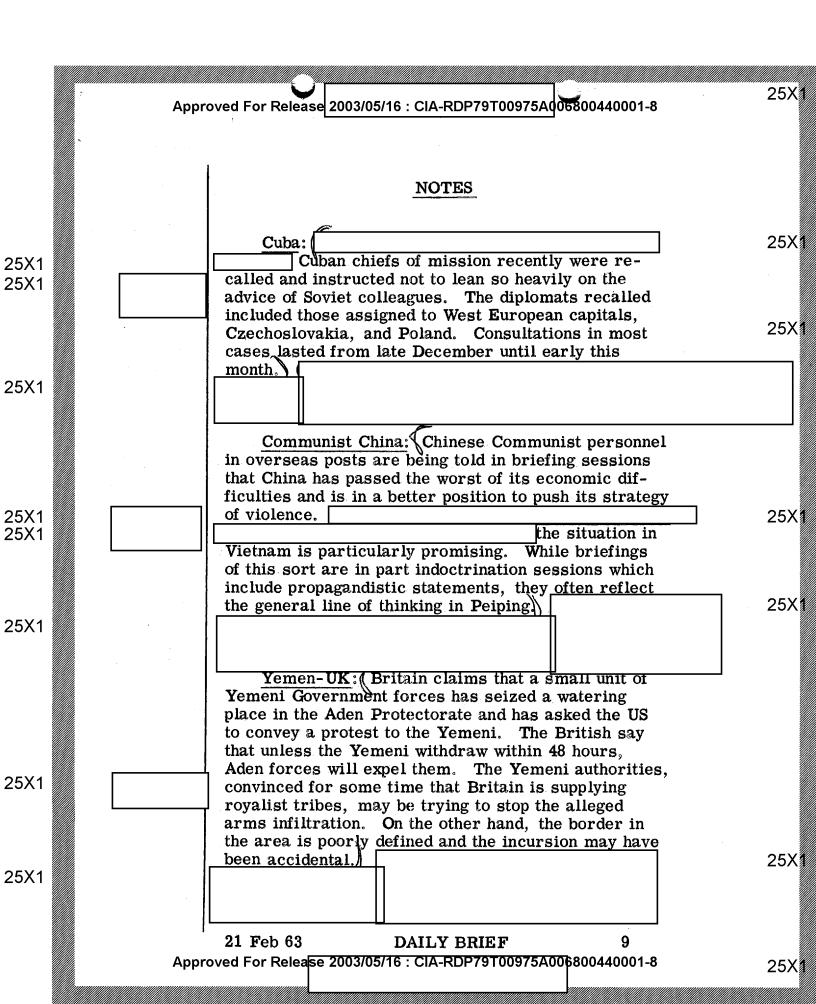

(Belgrade is planning a campaign to persuade the nonaligned states to recognize the East German regime. It will raise its representation in Pankow to the embassy level. At the same time, it will break off consular relations with Bonn and recall Yugoslav students from West Germany.)

Belgrade plans to use the UN as a forum for criticizing Bonn's refusal to discuss compensation for war victims. The regime also will ban Germanlanguage instruction in Yugoslav schools and will disseminate anti-German propaganda to "educate" the Yugoslav people)

25X

25X1

Next 1 Page(s) In Document Exempt

Europe - Japan - US Imports: The Common Market countries, Great Britain, and Japan have in the past week all reiterated strong opposition to further restrictions by the US on imports of woolen textiles. Officials from these countries have indicated that such restrictions, which they are aware are under consideration in Washington, would encourage existing antagonism against alleged US protective trade prac- tices, lead to pressure for retaliation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states- Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanonhave extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong- pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not volun- tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.	Approved For Release 2003/05/16 : CIA-RDP79T00975A006800440001-8	25
Market countries, Great Britain, and Japan have in the past week all reiterated strong opposition to further restrictions by the US on imports of woolen textiles. Officials from these countries have indicated that such restrictions, which they are aware are under consideration in Washington, would encourage existing antagonism against alleged US protective trade practices, lead to pressure for retaliation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.	, · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
Market countries, Great Britain, and Japan have in the past week all reiterated strong opposition to further restrictions by the US on imports of woolen textiles. Officials from these countries have indicated that such restrictions, which they are aware are under consideration in Washington, would encourage existing antagonism against alleged US protective trade practices, lead to pressure for retaliation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
the past week all reiterated strong opposition to further restrictions by the US on imports of woolen textiles. Officials from these countries have indicated that such restrictions, which they are aware are under consideration in Washington, would encourage existing antagonism against alleged US protective trade practices, lead to pressure for retailation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
further restrictions by the US on imports of woolen textiles. Officials from these countries have indicated that such restrictions, which they are aware are under consideration in Washington, would encourage existing antagonism against alleged US protective trade practices, lead to pressure for retaliation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: (The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.	• textiles. Officials from these countries have indicated that such restrictions, which they are aware are under consideration in Washington, would encourage existing antagonism against alleged US protective trade practices, lead to pressure for retaliation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
that such restrictions, which they are aware are under consideration in Washington, would encourage existing antagonism against alleged US protective trade practices, lead to pressure for retaliation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
consideration in Washington, would encourage existing antagonism against alleged US protective trade practices, lead to pressure for retaliation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.	1 antagonism against alleged US protective trade practices, lead to pressure for retaliation, and seriously worsen prospects for negotiations under the US Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states— Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong— pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not volun— tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.		25
Trade Expansion Act. Togo: The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Chana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states Chana, Senegal, and Lebanonhave extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong- pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not volun- tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
Togo: (The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not volun—tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
Togo: (The governments of the Ivory Coast, Upper Volta, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not volun—tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.	Trace Impansion 2100.
Upper Voltà, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
Upper Voltà, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
Upper Voltà, Niger, and Dahomey have decided not to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.	Togo: (The governments of the Ivory Coast to accord de jure recognition to the provisional Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic isolation will encourage a favorable solution of the Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not volun—tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.	to accord de jure recognition to the provisional
Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not volun—tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.	Togolese Government. They hope that diplomatic giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the course of events in Togo. So far only three states—Ghana, Senegal, and Lebanon—have extended de jure recognition. South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chong—pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not volun—tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number—two man and leader of its new political party.
South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.	Togolese internal crisis, but they may, in fact, be
South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.	giving Ghana a greater opportunity to influence the	25
South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
South Korea: If former security chief Kim Chongpil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.	Jure recognition.
pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
pil carries through with his announced intention to withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.	South Konon: If former goognity shiof Vim Change withdraw from politics, prospects will improve for a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
a relatively smooth transition to civilian government in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
in South Korea. Kim's announcement was not voluntary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
tary, however, and as long as he is in the country the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
the possibility remains that he will try to retain his position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
position as the regime's number-two man and leader of its new political party.
of its new political party.
		25
		20

DAILY BRIEF

Approved For Release 2003/05/16 : CIA-RDP79T00975Aq06800440001-8

21 Feb 63

10

NATIONAL INTELLIGENCE ESTIMATE

(The United States Intelligence Board, on 20 February 1963, approved the following national intelligence estimate:

SNIE 54/59-63: "Prospects for Malaysia"

25X1

25X1

21 Feb 63

DAILY BRIEF

11

Approved For Release 2003/05/16 : CIA-RDP79T00975A006800440001-8

```
THE PRESIDENT
```

The Vice President

Executive Offices of the White House

Special Counsel to the President

The Special Assistant for National Security Affairs

The Scientific Adviser to the President

The Director of the Budget

The Director, National Aeronautics and Space Administration

The Department of State

The Secretary of State

The Under Secretary of State

The Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs

The Deputy Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs

The Counselor and Chairman of the Policy Planning Council

The Director of Intelligence and Research

The Treasury Department

The Secretary of the Treasury

The Under Secretary of the Treasury

The Department of Defense

The Secretary of Defense

The Deputy Secretary of Defense

The Secretary of the Army

The Secretary of the Navy

The Secretary of the Air Force

The Assistant Secretary of Defense (International Security Affairs)

The Assistant Secretary of Defense

The Chairman, The Joint Chiefs of Staff

Chief of Naval Operations, United States Navy

Chief of Staff, United States Air Force

Chief of Staff, United States Army

Commandant, United States Marine Corps

U.S. Rep., Military Committee and Standing Group, NATO

Supreme Allied Commander, Europe

Commander in Chief, Pacific

Commander in Chief, Atlantic

The Director, Defense Intelligence Agency

The Director, The Joint Staff

The Director for Intelligence, The Joint Staff

The Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence, Department of Army

The Director of Naval Intelligence, Department of Navy

The Assistant Chief of Staff, Intelligence, Department of the Air Force

The Department of Justice

The Attorney General

The Federal Bureau of Investigation

The Director

The Atomic Energy Commission

The Chairman

The National Security Agency

The Director

The United States Information Agency

The Director

The National Indications Center

The Director

Approved For Release 200 (6) P: CSEGR 10975A006900440001-8